

#1. Corn nuts. Corn nuts are so loud, you might want to avoid eating them or at least don't eat them around your friends, they are so crunchy that you will probably just annoy your friends.

#2. Apples. The innocent juicy apples filled with delightful moisture are not as innocent as you would think. I would pronounce these my favorite fruit except the extreme crunch and noise kind of ruined it.

#3. Pita chips. These chips are so loud that they're bound to destroy your ears sometime sooner or later.

#4. Laffy taffy. These sweet treats personalities are actually decoys, instead they're sour on the inside. They make you lick the top of your mouth so much and so loudly that everybody else puts some distance in between you.

#5. Carrots. We all know this nefariously loud vegetable, the carrot. I would understand if you acted like a coward and backed out instead of eating this vegetable.

I appoint pita chips as my favorite option out of these five foods because of how well they taste with hummus.